PACKARD CHECKS SCORING

Matty Goes to Rescue of Ames, Quashes a Rally or Two and Strikes Out Six Men.

A flying leap, a slight struggle, a spasm of pain, and all was over. Thus the Giants extracted another victory from the Cincinnati Reds and settled back to play out the string of nine innings which nothing more than a formality, as Christy Mathewson was pitching. A sharp attack, concentrated in the second and third innings, when six hits were bunched for six runs, decided the outcome and gave the champions a winning streak of two straight at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. The score was 6 to 4.

A half-dozen bingles-no more, no lesswas all that New York compiled, but the manner of their compilation made them scattered over nine innings. For ever crisp little hit was placed right where it would do the most good, and so deft was the manœuvring that Rube Benton was put to flight.

Packard, a brother southpaw, came the rescue. Although the youngster failed to pull out of the hole which Benton left still a double by Larry Doyle, the first batter he faced, was the only hit he allowed. The Giants were compelled to sheath their weapons forthwith, and no further assaults were made on the enemy

Leon Ames was picked originally to play the leading role in the New York big blende had trouble trying to find th Leon became painfully aware that he was one ball and retired the side, it so happening that the bases were filled, and Benton at second. It is such a simple matter to quell such uprisings when one knows how. Firing from a six-run bombproof cage Matty breezed through seven innings, taking care that the Reds never bunched more than two hits in any on inning. He was found for seven safeties, but only three runs accrued therefrom. He did not give a pase on balls, while he boosted his strike-out record to six, which ! he takes in the average game.

The combination of circumstances which up to Cincinnati's first run was made up of a hit by Marsans and passes to Egan and Grant. If a youngster had been in the box it might have been inferred that the pitcher was unnerved by his support, for Marsans stole second and later third on a double pilfer with Egan, Meyers making throws which were none too good, but which Shafer and Herzog in sisted on taking in that fancy one-handed manner which leads to applause or de-With the bases filled Clark fanned, but
